The Adventure Log Magazine

40th Issue

Winter 92-93

Φουρ Νερδσ Πυβλισηινγ Χομπανψ (Four Nerds Publishing Company)

Table of Contents

The Adventure Log

40th ISSUE

Winter 1992-93

✠

What is the Adventure Log, you ask? Since 1984, it serves as the role-playing newszine for The Realm & Realm Law and all campaigns therein.

FEATURES ETC.....

The Theta Summary
A brief tale of events in Campaign θ
The Scrolls of Skelos by DC Rat
Chronology & Calendars in Telrhin
Fables of Telrhin: Rain over Cran Moor
In the Halls of King Estilonir
Paintball Update
The belated account of summer's happenings
The Cursed - Chapter I: The Charge of Mattathias and Tahg by David Posner
The first account of The Cursed
The Renegades - Chapter I: Arina
Rewritten account of the first chapter of the Renegades
The Trilogy by Nic Grut
The long awaited follow-up from Issue 37.
Tahg of Durg's Character Sheet by Dave Posner
The ugly truth
El Page Del Rat by DC Rat
Update on new editions of the Guide and Realm Law

CREDITS.....

Cover by Seth Lindberg drawn 2/13/93 during a particularly disorganized session of Phi Digamma (ϕF).

Written and edited by Christian and his 386SX on WordPerfect 5.1 and Write 3.1. Contributions by David Posner and Alex Oram as well as the players of Theta and Phi Digamma. All submissions welcome, and subscriptions are free of charge as always - please contact the editor (me) care of Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville New York, 10708 thru 1994.

Four Nerds Publishing Company

Christian Aldridge, Editor

Going to press as of 4:15 February 17

✠

The Campaign Theta Summary

Events taking place Summer 14, 3116n through Summer 75th, 3116n

Gathered in Lanion (the makeshift capital of war-torn Vijmania) for the funeral of King Linvorath, the Renegades waited alongside the other dignitaries for the outcome of the war effort. Lark-Han had taken the island of Farhaven in the East Isles in a surprise assault, and the Zhanian and Lark-Hanian armies had just returned from their victorious rout of Golsiad's 2nd Army outside Mandolin. But the news these men carried turned this day of nervous victory into one of historical celebration - the Thanes of Zhân had proclaimed Thurgon Ironclaw king of Zhân, thus ending the Regency that had lasted nearly three thousand years.

Those of the Renegades who remained in Lanion (Vizier Kipox & Baron Corbin) toasted the news in the company of their comrades Tharnen Shieldrender and the large Vike from Il Norhn named Klaeber Skane. But, as no day passes easily for adventuring groups, they were ambushed outside the castle that night. The fact that there were a total of three adventuring groups known to be in the city at that time was like having a murder at a butler convention; the Renegades stormed the underworld looking for clues and wondering if it hadn't been the Scavengers[1]. Satisfied at last that it had been yet a fourth group (the oh-so-famous Arachnids from the Borderlands), they booked passage for Kipox' city of Ohormay. That night Corbin's powerful protective wards saved him from the poison he was fed at dinner; too weak to do more than watch, he let Kipox and the other two avenge him (the would-be killer was soon found and disposed of).

The four arrived in Ohormay (a small city tucked between Balrahb and Toumbay along the coast of Bardor) on the 21st with great flourish. They were escorted to the palace and were met by Lord McBoo, Sir Og, Master Amrik, Squire Torthin and Lord Ffen-dervik as well as the court and staff. The Renegades had begun to assemble again.

Meanwhile in Lark-Han: Overly confident from their escapade with the "cat idol", Shathagâl, Hraffnin, Torfinn, Chef and the dubious Drg'Kryl set forth to plunder the tomb of Arâsh Mule on the 24th.

Back in Ohormay, Klaeber left the group for Lark-Han as they planned and readied for adventure - to find the Isle of Seven Deaths and the treasure left there by all who went before (including Piris DeVir, their only link to the Throne of Talanasron[2]). On the 25th, aboard a stolen pirate ship dubbed the Keel Hauler, they headed out towards the West Isles and the waters controlled by the Scarlet Brotherhood. With an expendable crew of slaves and convicts, they made their way past Malinas for the pirate keep of Ladon, last piece of land before the unmapped waters which hid the cursed Isle. On the 34th they ran afoul of the man-o-war Avenging Angel; in a violent battle, the Angel suffered heavy losses and was left adrift as the Keel Hauler made off. Kipox' famous evolutionary anomaly, his vegetarian pterodactyl Mixelplk, lay dead over the deck of the Avenging Angel.

That same day on Mount Mogull, Shathagâl, Hraffnin, Torfinn, Chef and Shystone found the tomb but were at a loss on how to open it.

1The Scavengers had been the chief rivals and antagonists of the Sons of Fantasy, whose remaining members had formed the Renegades.

2The Throne, an ancient Arnorian artifact made from three of the twelve Stones of Ralendahr, is assumed to be the perpetual quest of the Renegades.

The Keel Hauler, meanwhile, docked in Ladon for repairs and supplies, and set about recruiting sailors to replace their dead. Among their new recruits was Castimir, a Shemite who was demoted to deckswabber after irritating Corbin.

They set sail the 36th and were joined by Lord Warren that night as he flew low across the water astride his bronze dragon Thoridyre. That night, Thoridyre having flown back to land, the Keel Hauler arrived within proximity of the Isle of Seven Deaths[3] In the morning they made sail and headed towards the island that taunted them from across the water, and soon found themselves caught within a storm that always blew inland and allowed no ship to leave. Floating within the small bay were two Khitan ships; transparently they swayed and creaked and whispered of those who had died upon their decks. The Renegades went ashore, taking Castimir for the first few days but leaving McBoo, Ffen and Tharnen to command the ship.

On the great stone moratorium that lay upon the beach were the following words in Old Khitaite and Dracus:

"Herein Lie the Bones of All Who Came Before You.

Suffer the Seven Deaths before
Here you come to rest.

Seven Gates to Seven Ends -
The Hall of Troubled Sleep
The Hall of Self-Denial
The Hall of Simple Pain
The Waystation of Eternity
The Death of Fire
The Death of Drowning
The Death of Sorrow.

These Seven Trials you face
Before here you find your place."

And so with those encouraging words in mind, they ventured on. They met the Seven Deaths and lived, if somewhat changed and battered. It took them 13 days, and then they found themselves on the ancient stone shrine of Kiyotamaka atop the mountain, and there they rang His sacred gong, and beheld Him as He flew from the skies and landed upon His alter. As patron of the cursed isle He bade them leave in peace, for they had passed His Seven Trials. With calm wind at their backs they set sail for Ohormay, riches in hand and one clue closer to the Throne of Talanasron.

During this time, Barabajagal (who had just completed his holy training in Cran Moor) and his friend Palath joined with Willian the Red, Loria, Ravenoke, Antilius, and Marat in the town of Maricot and then journeyed with them to Semetrian Tanger. That night, Summer 50th, Marat died as the party was ambushed by the local underworld who mistook them for the Renegades[4]. The group travelled across the Grasslands where Barabajagal and Palath left them, and then towards Willian's baronial estate in West Akania. As they passed through Derris they visited Sir Lance, Marquis Aquilius' friend and companion, in their castle of Roumeli Hissar. From there Willian travelled with Loria and a few select friends to the central Weatherpeak Mountains before joining Kranken

---

3The legend varied as to why it was cursed and so named. Some held that around the year 100n, a ship happened into the bay and found seven Khitan ships there, all without crew. At any rate, no one save Piris DeVir was known to have survived.

4Though Barabajagal and Ravenoke are members, they seldom travel with the Renegades. As with Willian, they were members of the Sons of Fantasy before it disbanded.

Barnstormer as they returned to Avignor in Willian's barony of Reichenhall.

In great ceremony the Renegades docked in Ohormay on the morning of Summer 57, 3116n. Vizier Kipox, Baron Corbin, Lord Warren, Sir Og, Lord McBoo, Master Amrik, Lord Ffen-dervik, Master Tharnen and Squire Torthin were escorted gloriously to the vizierial palace. The Shemite deckswabber Castimir was set free as were the other crewmen.

Losing no time however, Corbin teleported Kipox, Og, Torthin and the Belian priest Fendon with him to his estate in Lark-han. Here they set their affairs in order and freed the Hyrkanian woman Miroo from her forced captivity, as well as the half-elven slavegirl Siloria who had served on Corbin's estate. Fendon, having attended to his needs, returned by ship to Ohormay. Desirous to discover the nature of some of the Dalmatosian relics they uncovered in their adventure, they decided to seek the advice of Richard II, king of Dalmatia. Together with the freed slaves, Corbin summoned them first to Dryer Mob and then to Hamilton, capital of the Empire, by the 60th. Here they were received by the king and stayed at the palace for the night. Siloria was given a "dowry" of sorts and set on her way in the prosperous city. Following up on what the king told them, they jumped to Cran Moor, capital of Dalmatia's sister state, Arnor. Here they met Warren and Tharnen (with his henchman Dirkir), and together sought Baron Drion, whose wisdom had yet to fail them. They happened upon more clues to "Zalenheart's Armor", the fabled armor worn by Zalenheart don Ralendahr, founder of Dalmatos and High General of Arnoras - and naturally, being adventurers and all, they set out after it.

The path led to Ildengrad. This would be the third time they attempted to infiltrate the fortress[5]. This was seat to Golsiad's First Army - and home to the Hunter of Ildengrad - Lieutenant of Kirdain, Pride of Savana, and Bane of Ellsbury. The Renegades stopped at Park Then on the way, and enlisted the advice of the retired court mage Scandin. On his advice they pursued clues all the way to Tharbad in Arnor's Cardolan province. From there Warren, Corbin, Kipox, Og, Tharnen, Miroo and Dirkir set out to Armington to scout the forces of Golsiad. Here Tharnen and Dirkir went their way, and the rest went on to Tyrn Gorthad where they called out to Amrik who joined them, flying through the skies in the form of a hawk. At Tyrn Gorthad they stormed the orcan camp and put every last one to the sword. By Rana[6] of the 65th they crossed the Shanralos[7] river, and after arguing with the elven immigration guys about Og's suspiciously Uruk background, they were escorted into the elven realm of Dramia (with Og bound, blindfolded and knocked unconscious). They spent the Days of the Carnutes here, as Amrik joined the Druidic ceremonies deep within the forest and Corbin was reunited with his betrothed, the elf Silvershine[8].

After Og's gory dispatch of a patrol, the Renegades made their way across Ellsbury Plains towards Ildengrad on Summer 70th. They scouted it for a day

---

5 Chapter XIX: Ildengrad Adventure Log #35

6 Rana means midnight among the Old Faith.

7Shanralos means hope in Sindarin, and is translated as Shân in Kienos and Zhân in Khuzdul. The river marks the boundary between the southron realm of Arnor and the elven realm of Dramia - the elves claim it means "the river where hope begins" but the southrons say it means "the river where hope ends."

8 It is rumored, discreetly of course, that during the debaucheries libertine activities of the Festival of the Carnutes, Kipox had his way with Miroo and coupled with an elderly widowed elf, while Amrik ran off with a cute druidess named Auburn. These are just wild rumors, of course.

and then on the 71st they made their third attempt to reclaim Zalenheart's Armor. In the first hours of the 72nd they succeeded, and teleported with the prize to Karm Tor.

Only days later, on the 75th of Summer, the Shemite deckswabber Castimir found his way to Krag Durn where he met the Uruk-Hai twins Munch and Crunch - and thus began Campaign Phi Digamma.

PCs and Who They're Played By

Kipox & Chef - Alex Oram
Corbin & Kranken - Jason Toy
Willian, Tharnen & Drg'Kryl - John Small
Warren & Torfinn - Todd MacGregor
Shathagâl & Castimir - Dave Posner
Barabajagal & Hraffnin - Jonas Weiss
Amrik & Klaeber - Ben Russin
Munch - Ian Dickson
Crunch - Pat Hill
McBoo - Chris Alridge

The Scrolls of Skelos

βψ τηε Ιλλυστριουσ Χομβατ Ρατ Ημσελφ.

(By the Illustrious Combat Rat Himself.)

And you bastards thought you had heard the last of me. Well, needless to say, you were wrong. So, what do I have to say in this issue?

Dates and the Telrhin Calendar

If you check page 1 of the Field Guide you can read the vague summary of how time is recorded in Telrhin. It does inform you that the solstices are Summer 66 and Winter 66 (rather cryptic, eh?), but otherwise lets us wallow in an ambiguous time-frame composed of the Seasons. There is, however, a brief mention of months and weeks based on the lunar rotations - but this is misleading as it defines a month as having 28 days (the cycle of Tala) which would give you 13 months to a year (364 days based on the full solar cycle). So what's missing?

Time and the Old Faith

Those people who follow the Old Faith and many rural peoples, especially those who pray to the Moons, record time based on the lunar rotation. This is a primative system and is not followed in most urban areas where time is recorded. This system allows for 13 months of 4 weeks each, each week having seven days. Khazad, Sindar (including Sylvar and Nende) and Uruk peoples follow this as well. The Khazad are psyched since it works on a multiple of 7.

The Common Calendar

The Common Calendar, established by the Destinite Empire, breaks the year into 12 months and 52 weeks, which places the solstices on August 6 and February 6.

Common Calendar	Seasonal Calendar
March (New Year) 30 days	Spring 1-30
April 30 days	Spring 31-60
May 31 days	Spring 61-91
June 30 days	Summer 1-30
July 30 days	Summer 31-60
August 31 days	Summer 61-91
September 30 days	Autumn 1-30
October 30 days	Autumn 31-60
November 31 days	Autumn 61-91
December 30 days	Winter 1-30
January 30 days	Winter 31-60
February 30 days	Winter 61-91

What is additionally cool about this is that it returns the Roman Calendar back to how it used to work before the Christians screwed it up.

So this might be real dull for some of you, but just remember that people like Jonas spent a good hour figuring out when his character's (Boarmere) birthday was in Telrhin.

Name Changes and Poetic License

Since I just brought it up accidently (whoops.) by calling Jonas' famous character Boarmere, I should mention the fact that Chris has changed a few names in his world. The only ones he tampered with are either places you really didn't know about or player characters that are dead or no longer playing. Reason being either that they don't match the new cultural developments or they simply sucked to start with. Call this poetic license, but I still say it's pretty Stalinist. You can take it up with him if you want.

The Grand Plan for Theta

Since Campaign Theta doesn't meet very often, Chris is considering adding blocks of time in addition to actual dungeon and adventure time. Blocks would be major jumps in time for the whole campaign, and would help you build up cities, political power, construction, etc. The blocks could be a year or a few, depending on what you players decide.

So that's it for this issue of the Log. Take care, have fun, and kill a party member or two. Cheerio.

Fables of Telrhin
Fable 29
Rain over Cran Moor

The great fire rumbled to match the thunder, darkness in the halls - lightning came and brought life to shadows, who fled again engulfed in night. The hearthrug was red and warm, and near it sat a king upon a highbacked wooden chair. His face, brought alive by the flickering light of the fire, was old and spoke of sadness. Near him sat another man, younger, his gaze intent upon the fire; his face spoke of time and memory, time and sadness, time and time as the great clock chimed suddenly from without the room. The echoing lilt was drowned in another torrent of rain upon the windows, rain with thunder as the fire rumbled on. The young woman at the king's side shivered, her light form curled upon the rich hearthrug, leaning against the throne-ish chair that held her father.

"Samuel." he whispered, his voice old and failing.

"Yes, my king?" more thunder and sparks from the fire.

"Sing for me, good Samuel; sing for an old man." the young woman stared into the fire as he began to speak, his voice strong and rich, blending with the thunder and the rain.

"I will sing you the Song of Boarmere, for you and Nirnadel." and as he sang the fire grew and the flames soared into the air, the wind howling as the rain came down:

"Though dragons he fought and vampires he slew,
Though goodness he sought and in greatness grew,
Though kingdoms he wrought and power he knew,
It is not in glory that Lord Boarmere fell.
Rumor spread from far and near,
Whispered by night, mouth to ear;
Bearded Boarmere, Barovia's king,
Had fallen in Khazad-dum.
Those who fall in Khazad-dum
Aren't meant to walk 'neath star or moon;
So fell King Boarmere by himself -
Dead beneath the mountains, dead beneath the earth,
Destined to fall in darkened Dwarrowdelf.
In life friends he had made,
A wife and lands he saved;
But in death he went alone,
In Khazad-dum, where Durin walks.
Aquilius and Willian, and Dremia fair,
His lifelong friends they left him there,
Left in lonely, darkened Dwarrowdelf.
His corpse enshrined in an epic tomb -
The silent halls of Khazad-dum.
Though dragons he fought and vampires he slew,
Though goodness he sought and in greatness grew,
Though kingdoms he wrought and power he knew,
It is not in glory that Lord Boarmere fell."

There was silence in the hall, silence broken by the sparks of a rumbling fire, broken by the steady pour of rain. The wind had died and there was no thunder.

"Tell me, Baron, is it true?" asked the soft voice of the king's daughter.

"The tale is deceiving, my lady; they lay Boarmere to rest on a boat, which they set ablaze and sent down the White River."

"And what of the others?" she asked.

"Dremia Sein, called Dremia the Fair, was slain by Crowly Canith, crowned prince of Ausgourd. No one has seen o heard of Aquilius Lief in many years; some say he passed away to Silallas, sailing from the Havens to the West."

"And Willian?"

"Ah, Willian. Willian the Red, once called Grey Willian; Willian of Avignor, Baron of Reichenhall. He lives, still young in his long Sylvarian years, alone among the memories of his friends." the wind howled again, bringing with it lightning and thunder; the fire rumbled on, and the king sighed a lonely sound. The princess stirred and rose, and bade them goodnight. She left the great shadowy hall, a warm light drifting from her oil lamp as she climbed the steps to her rooms. The young man watched her leave, and the king stared into the fire.

"You will see that she is looked after when I am gone, won't you, Samuel?"

"You know that I will." he answered simply.

"As you looked after me, good Samuel."

"And your father before you."

"And his father before him." smiled the king, a slight sad smile.

"Yes, my king."

The thunder rumbled, distant, and the fire dimmed to a rich glow as the rain poured down.

PAINTBALL UPDATE

Wednesday October 14, 1992 - 2:02am

I had a lot of fun this summer; I hit the fields 6 times since last article (June 11, Summer Issue). I was disappointed that so few people showed an interest, though. Jason's schedule conflicted, and the Todd & Dave Midnight Neighborhood Shoot Out put a damper on the gun situation, so I suppose I shouldn't complain. Murder Inc is in bad shape; I think I'm the only member. But, since I'm also the editor of this magazine, I get as much space as I want to write about Paintball.
My challenge still stands: I'll take on anyone, anywhere, almost anytime. I'll even give you paintballs and any other paraphernalia I have that you need. See ya in the trenches.

RULES:
300 fps max velocity.
Any hit counts, so long as the ball breaks. No minimum range.
No time-outs - you're always a target.
If you're not sure if someone is dead - shoot them. It's up to them to shout out a hit clearly, and then make their way to the dead zone.

NAME	CALL NAME	EK	BATS	KILLS	DEATHS	OK	AVG KILL	AVG DEATH	KILL%
#1 Chris	Rat	17	10	14	7	4	1.4	0.7	40%
WGP Ranger / VM68 CA		Field 7 Team Wins W/L/T 23/23/12					Kills 42 Deaths 30
#2 Benji	Mad Dog	10	6	9	5	3	1.5	0.8	36%
Line SI Advantage SI CA
#3 John	Madman	6	4	8	6	2	2.0	1.5	28%
PMI Piranha Longbarrel CA
#4 Jason	Headhunter	2	2	1	1	0	0.5	0.5	20%
TASO Spartan 12gr
#5 Laqdep		1	1	1	1	0	1.0	1.0	20%
N/A
#6 Dylan		1	3	3	5	1	1.0	1.7	12%
N/A
#7 Steve		1	2	1	2	0	0.5	1.0	10%
N/A
#8 Todd		0	4	3	7	0	0.8	1.8	08%
Line Bushmaster SI 12gr		Field 1 Team Wins W/L/T 5/2/0					Kills 0 Deaths 7
#9 Alex		0	3	0	3	0	0.0	1.0	00%
N/A
#10 Mara		0	1	0	1	0	0.0	1.0	00%
N/A		Field 1 Team Wins W/L/T 3/5/1					Kills 6 Deaths 5

EK (Earned Kills):	Battles+Kills-Deaths
Bats (Battles):	Total Battles Fought
Kills:	Total People Killed
Deaths:	Total Times Killed
OK (Overkills):	Killing All Opposition Singlehandedly
Avg Kill (Average Kill):	Average Kill Per Battle
Kill Percentage:	(Kills/Deaths)/5

RANK BY TOTAL KILLS
1-Chris
2-Benji
3-John
4-Dylan/Todd
5-Laqdep/Jason/Steve

RANK BY OVERKILLS
1-Chris
2-Benji
3-John
4-Dylan

RANK BY AVG KILL
1-John
2-Benji
3-Chris
4-Dylan/Laqdep
5-Todd

RANK BY AVERAGE DEATH
1-Jason
2-Chris
3-Benji
4-Laqdep/Steve/Alex
5-John

RANK BY KILL %
1-Chris
2-Benji
3-John
4-Jason/Laqdep
5-Dylan

RANK BY EARNED KILL
1-Chris
2-Benji
3-John
4-Jason
5-Laqdep/Dylan/Steve

CHRONICLES OF THE CURSED

CHAPTER I

THE CHARGE (and strategic withdrawal) OF MATTATHIAS (MUNCH) AND TAHG THE BARBARIAN

Fictionalized
by David Posner

An account of the events on Autumn 19th (September 19th), 3116n. after the plundering of the Tomb of King Mepses

"Early wake up," said Gergon-Hor, the proud, muscular Bane Knight. "Those 'White Hand' bozos are signaling us for a meeting." Gergon then turned to Mattathias, the young but very promising Uruk-Hai Scourge, "Munch, get your men up and get that drink away from your brother. We're going to need everyone sharp, they out number us nearly five to one."

"Damn Gergon, I should be giving the orders around here, he has no real honor," Mattathias was grumbling to himself as he stomped over to the shrub where his brother Crunch was trying to hide himself, his belly and his flask. "Crunch, where did you get that, I told you never to bring that stuff out on campaign, the Baron has rules about this sort of thing. When we get back to Krag-durn we're going to have a serious talk." Munch grabbed the flask out of his brother's hand who could only look up sheepishly, then crushed it in his mighty grip. Crunch watched, heart broken, as the whisky dribbled out and was soaked up by the grassy earth. "Now go over and wake up the rogue, I'll wake up 'Troll.'" Munch caressed his scimitar as he moved over to where the hulking form of Tahg was lying sprawled, face down on the grass, his great maul by his side. "Hey, Tahg," he nudged the huge human, careful not to touch the lesser creature's dripping puss-warts, "time to get up." Tahg stirred slowly then instinctively reached for his maul. "No, no Tahg! It's Munch. Munch friend, remember." Munch was much stronger then Tahg but nevertheless Tahg's maul was ever a weapon to fear.

"Munch friend," repeated Tahg then chuckled stupidly. Tahg turned his head to smile at his best and smartest friend, Munch. Munch didn't smile back. Tahg had yet to understand that the mask Munch had given him to cover his putrid (see Comliness Table in Field Guide) visage actually kept others from seeing his expressions. Even if Much could have seen Tahg's face, it's doubtful that he would have been able to recognize his expression beneath his the large, hairy warts, puss dripping acne and large, uneven features. Tahg frowned at Munch's lack of response but quickly forgot the seemingly rude treatment as he became engrossed in the antics of two butterflies as they fluttered above the grass.

"Munch," growled Gergon, "get over here, it's time for a war conference." Mattathias stomped over to Gergon, careful to appear as imposing as possible to Gergon and his toady beside him. Mattathias hated Gergon and he knew Gergon hated him even more. He knew Gergon was relishing every chance to use his rank to boss the younger member of the order around.

Munch stood as close as possible to the older knight, and towered above him by a good six inches or more. The toady shrank back a step, engulfed by Munch's shadow, but Gergon met Munch's sure gaze, never betraying his secret fear of the young goliath.

"Munch, look out there, you see that on the plain a few hundred yards away. Those sleazy little 'White Hand' Uruks have sent out a messenger. I want you to take one of your men and find out what they have to say, then report back to me. And remember, no monkey business out there, these are very sensitive negotiations. If at all possible I'd like to get out of this loosing as few of my men as possible . . . uh, and your's too, Munch."

Mattathias turned to carry out his orders, he wanted to slug Gergon, only his brother and his friends called him 'Munch,' to everyone else he was Mattathias, soon to be Sir Mattathias. He held his fist though, and instead went on with the business at hand.

"Hey, Crunch," Munch called out to his brother, "are you sober enough for a mission?"

"Yea, I'm <hic>, I'm sober <hic>," replied Crunch with a slur. "But I think I'd rather just stay around here and rub my head for a few minutes, besides I should probably better, should probably keep an eye on that thief," he stammered. "I'll make sure he doesn't go an' try anything <hic> like that last one we had, the skinny, little, moustached bastard <hic>."

"Yea you do that Crunch." Munch didn't want to take his brother out into danger if he wasn't in tip-top shape so he turned to the shambling behemoth who was still engrossed with the butterflies. "Tahg, come! Tahg, come and help Munch."

Tahg turned and looked at Munch through the holes in his leather mask, "Tahg help friend Munch."

"Good Tahg," Munch replied.

The two marched out across the field, weapons ready, until only about a hundred yards separated them and Uruk messenger with his two shield bearers. A tense moment passed as the two embassies eyed each other, then the Uruk raised his right hand, showing a palm coated with white chalk or powder (a peaceful gesture signaling that it was safe to come closer).

Then suddenly from a hidden position a "White Hand Orc" nervously let fly an arrow which landed at Tahg's feet startling the barbarian. Driven into a sudden rage by the unwarranted attack Tahg raised his mighty hammer and charged the three lonely and stunned figures a hundred yards away.

Believing that the poor, stupid barbarian would likely die if he fought the three Uruks alone, Munch did his knightly duty and rushed to the aid of his moldy-faced friend.

As the two huge warriors approached, the three Uruks readied themselves and sent a brief prayer out to Yurtrus that their comrade's arrows might find their mark before the two titans came crashing down upon them. At the same time they prayed that none of the enemies they had made among the bowmen would try to shoot them instead.

So Mattathias, Slayer of More than Twelve and Tahg of Durg, The Buffalo Rider thundered across the field. Mattathias wore his knightly armor and Tahg little more then heavy animal skins and his heavy, iron-shod "Air-Tahg" shoes.

As he ran, Tahg let out his horrid battle cry, "Bogga, bogga, bogga." The three Uruks didn't know what to make of the noise but were none the less terrified.

Arrows flew from a number of Uruk bowmen as the two charged closer, covering the distance with amazing speed. One arrow stuck Tahg in his arm but in his fury he barely noticed it. Another, larger volley of arrows was fired before the two finally closed for combat and by now Mattathias and Tahg had a number of arrows sticking from their armor and animal skins.

Tahg brought his hammer down upon one of the shield bearers, the great iron mallet missed its target but still the handle caught the helpless Uruk square down the center of his forehead with enough force to break his skull wide open. Gray-matter oozed down the remnants of the Uruk's face.

With one fell swoop of his scimitar, Mattathias, Wightbane, sliced the other shield bearer in half. He then turned and prepared to strike the lager, well armed messenger. Another volley of arrows rained down upon the fray, one piercing the great muscle at the nape of Mattathias' neck. Mattathias only winced slightly. However, two arrows caught Tahg in his side sending him down. Mattathias then quickly dispatched the well armed Uruk with a cleave cutting the poor Goblin from his shoulder to his heart.

The arrows continued to rain down upon Mattathias and stick into his armor as he gathered up his huge friend and carried him unburdened back towards the camp. Along the way several more volleys of arrows rained down upon the two but all lacked the force needed to pierce the armor of Mattathias or the skins of Tahg.

When the two finally made it to the safety of the camp they resembled human pin cushions from the number of arrows sticking out of their armor. Tahg was laid down, wounds bound and the knights cast healing enchantments till he was revived from unconsciousness. As he awoke Tahg looked around, blinked and asked, "Where Tahg hammer?"

Mattathias realized that in the confusion of the fray he had left the great maul out in the middle of the field among the dead Uruks. "Oh well," he said, "I guess we'll have to just get it back to you after the battle."

The Renegades

Chapter I: Arina

This is rewritten, first appearing in Adventure Log 18. Events taking place between Spring 89th and Summer 43rd, 3111n.

A warm wind was running its way up the valley as the sun rose to mid day, leaving very little shade on the rocky slopes of the Weatherpeak Mountains. Summer had just begun, and so had the journey of a small group of adventurers who made their way slowly up the old Targon Trail.

There were six figures, the first four riding horseback along the worn, rocky path. The leader wore armor with a griffin symbol on his shield; he was followed by three others, in loose garments, two of them elven. Behind these four followed a haffer astride a sheep, bickering with a huddled, cloaked figure who trotted next to him. These were the remnants of the Sons of Fantasy, as well as the last surviving member of the Brawlers; what was left since their ill-fated journey through the mine shafts of Khazad-dum.

The mountains around were grey, and their slopes treacherous. Fanged creatures would begin to creep up as soon as the shadows began to stretch dark and long across the hills, and the weather alone was enough to kill travellers in wintertime. They headed south, away from the lowlands of Zhân and towards Akania on the far side of the mountains.

At nightfall they made camp, a bright fire to keep the wolves at bay. They were all soon asleep, the knight left to watch over them as the cold set in.

He sat with his back to the fire, his sword over his lap, and stared out across the valley. The twin moons were new and shrouded in soft clouds, and the wind carried the distant howl of wolves. Nearby the soft snoring of Ravenoke rose and fell, but Warren was too deep in thought to notice. He looked out across the valley, but all he saw was the flicker of torchlight as it glinted off the swinging blade of Manda Crowly - swinging too fast for him to stop, swinging towards his neck. Warren shivered, and forced himself not to think about it. He stoked the fire and walked around the camp.

He looked down at the sleeping body of Willian. Willian, who had stood there watching, as Manda killed Dremia. Stood there as Manda killed Warren - killed him? Warren still could not understand. The blow had landed, he knew that; but the rest was beyond him. His thoughts shifted, and he relived it again - as he had every day since:

Darkness all around, darkness in the halls of Durin. The flicker of a torch was all they had, all they had had, for days. They turned, remembered in slow motion, as Manda Crowly called to them from behind:

"Aquilius!" he called, "Aquilius Lief!"

His voice echoed down the halls, down Durin's Way. They stopped and stared at him, weapons drawn - Willian vanished into invisibility. Manda stared back at them, his great two-handed sword clasped in his hands, his eyes on the verge of madness, his huge hulking form alone in the halls of Khazad-dum.

"Where is Aquilius?" he demanded again.

"We were separated. He isn't with us." answered Dremia, her voice calm and weary.

"Coward! He hides from me! Cowards all of you!" he screamed, slamming his sword onto the floor where sparks flew. There was silence as he stood there, the Sons of Fantasy staring back at him, at the end of their strength.

"Who are you to call us cowards, Manda Crowly? If you had not murdered Boarmere, outnumbered and without mercy, he would answer you with blood." growled Warren, his anger welling up inside him.

"Do you call me out, you nobody? You little follower, chasing after your bastard elven leader! You dare challenge me?" he spat.

"I do." answered Warren, even as Dremia started to hold him back:

"He'll kill you!" she hissed.

"I know." he answered, raising his mandoble. He walked steadily forwards, as Manda glared at him:

"No great challenge, believe me." he muttered, hefting his sword in front of him, the first signs of madness creeping even into his voice. They swung, and swung again, and Warren was beaten back, his strength undone by the sword of Manda Crowly; the sword Stormraiser - heirloom to the throne of Asgard. The great warrior beat the young man down, until he raised his sword for a last blow - a blow that would take off Warren's head at the shoulders. Manda swung with all of his might, and the blade hit home; but Warren did not die. He was smashed to the ground, his sword flying across the stones, and the rest he did not understand. The rest was the sound of dragonscales as wings unfolded, of blood spilling from his neck, of him calling out to his god, to Nirandivel, as his life's blood left him.

Two bow shots rang out across the valley, and Warren was torn from his dreams as both hit home. He cried out as he fell to his knees, two arrows sticking into his lower back:

"AMBUSH!" he gasped, and the others stirred as he held out his sword weakly. Orcs ran into the camp, and soon they were overrun. Loria and Ravenoke never had time to react, and though Willian killed two of them as his vorpal blade cleared its sheathe, he was tackled and taken down. Og stood his ground, and Kipox shaded into invisibility and rolled outside the circle of battle. Warren fought bravely until he was overwhelmed, but just then Og cried out and threw back his foes, and Kipox began to kill off those at the fringe of the fight, until they too fell back.

"Run, you bastards!" hissed Kipox in Black Speech, but they regrouped and rushed Og, who had climbed atop a cluster of rocks, holding his hand over the gash in his leg. But then a horn rang out, and the orcs turned and cursed the fates.

"Dwarves!" they hissed, and scurried into the darkness of the hills. Og collapsed, exhausted, and crawled to the far side of the rocks to hide.

Dwarven soldiers marched into the camp as Kipox bound the wounds of his friends, fanning out to secure the area.

Dwarves are no friends to outsiders, and so og they threw into a cell and Kipox with him when he defied their decision. This cell was deep into the mountain, deep under the rocks of Hailstorm, called Malovin in Willian and Loria's tongue, from whence these dwarves came. They have no love for orcs and neither do they elves, and so Loria was confined, wounded and alone, to a guarded room with no sunlight. But for the patronage of Lark-Han, the dwarven allied city they frequented, and the service to Zhân they had rendered in slaying the Balrog of Dwarrowdelf, they were in time released, if rudely, to make their way once more southwards through the mountains of Morin-Haal.

They began the slow descent through the southern slopes, until the Targon trail, called Tehmil by the dwarves and Telimnil in Sindarin, led them to the gates of Sid Armin. A great hill rose again and blocked the passage through to the Sinland forest beyond, a cliff overlooking the trees. But the dwarves had long ago hewn a tunnel, 21 feet wide and two thirds as high, which ran beneath and led to the forest's edge. Once it had been guarded by the dwarves of Zhân, and then the Westron peoples of who built the castle of Kristenhall above on the cliff-top, and now stood in ruins and guarded by none. And so the Renegades - as they had become called - lit torches and made their way through the darkness behind Sir Warren. The brigands who watched the gates fled at their arrival, and the resistance they met from an orcan group within the tunnel was light and easily overcome.

They crossed the Sinland forest that lay between them and Arina, where they were to meet Aquilius and Lance, and soon came upon the White river.

"It's been awhile since I last saw this river. It was winter when we rode along the bank northward to fight the witch Mazaera and save the town of Bywater. Dremia was there; and so was Boarmere. And there we laid Elric to rest. Those were greater days." said Warren as they paused at the river's edge.

"Grumbling about the past doesn't fit a young man." added Ravenoke.

"I think it's in his damned Numester blood." muttered Kipox.

They made they way downriver until late that night they came to Arina - the Wayward City.

So it was that the Renegades arrived at Arina by moonlight on Summer 11th. Aquilius was nowhere to be found, and no word left of his whereabouts; the party settled into the Tavern of the Labor Party and waited. Kipox ran afoul of the law in the same night, and escaped into the underworld of the thieves' guild where he trained for the title of Thief among the ranks of rogues and other creatures of the night; with the help of Willian they tried to find Kipox' notorious and elusive father, the great thief Kander.

Biding their time, the Renegades waited for adventure to befall them.

The Trilogy

The Trilogy was written by Nicolai Grut sometime in Tutorial 1 (9th Grade). and then he stumbled on it years later back in 87 and handed it over. Part I of Book I was printed in Issue #37 of the Adventure Log, and Part II (printed here) was meant to follow in Issue #38 - but didn't. So here it is.
Incidently, there were supposed to be 3 books of 3 parts each, forming a bizarre "Trilogy^2".
As Part II was drawn in pencil and never re-inked (Nicolai did color ink Part I), the copy-quality is rather questionable.

BOOK I

PART II

00/0160

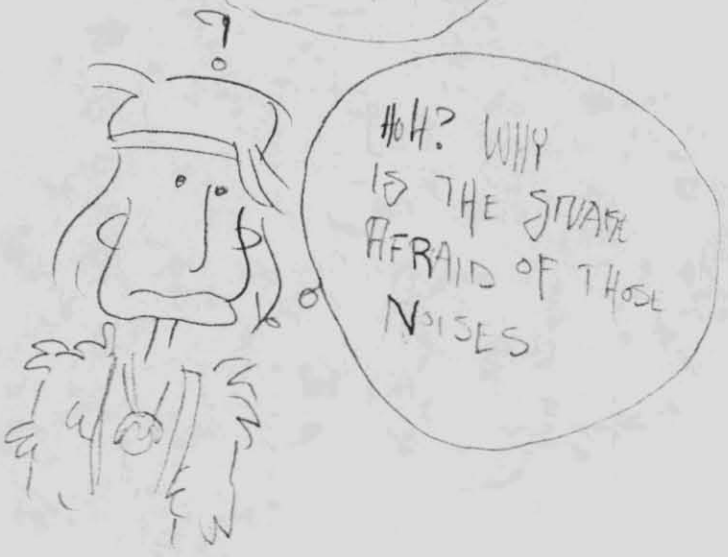

WE'VE GOT TO TAKE HIM TO THE JUNGLE BEFORE HE WAKES UP
QUICK HES WAKING UP
HI GUYS
NOT ANY MORE
BONES

LATER ON

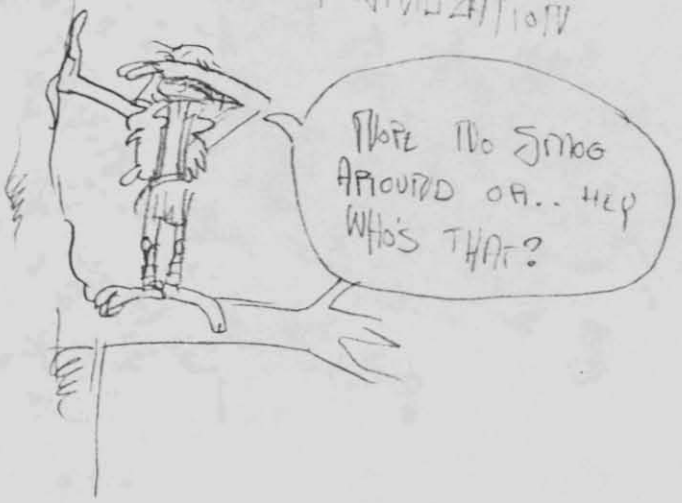

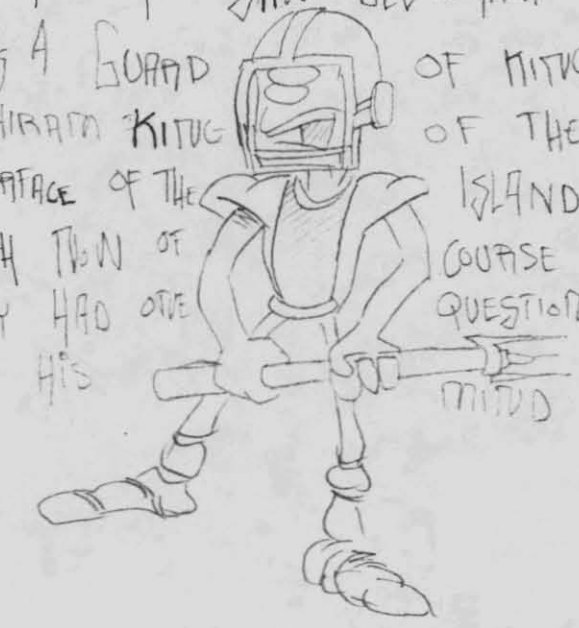

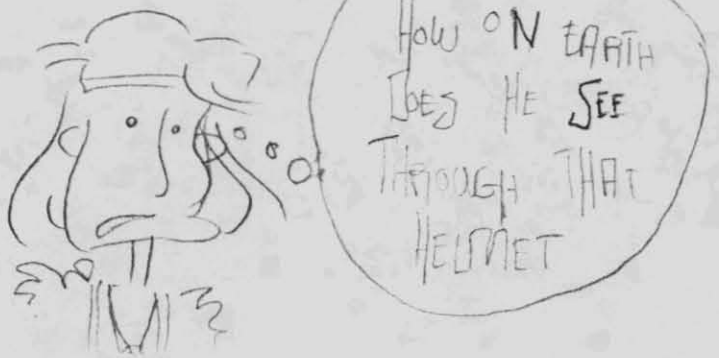

00/03/

HE CLIMED UP THE TALLEST TALE TO LOOK FOR CIVILIZATION

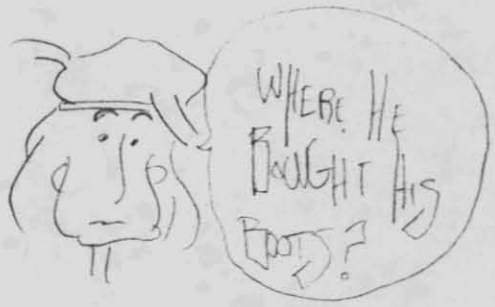

WHAT HE SAW BELOW HIM WAS A GUARD OF MITUG SHIRATA KITUG OF THE SURFACE OF THE ISLAND POSITION OF COURSE ONLY HAD ONE QUESTION ON HIS MIND

00/04/00

THIS STUPID!

MEANWHILE DOWN BELOW THE GUARD WAS GETTING ANGRY FOR NO APPARENT REASON

oc/05/ex

(Dad) Bram 6 com m. (Mom) Sahg 4 com (Bore 8 others but all died)

"The Cursed"

Tahg	Cram	Sam	Bram Jr.
20 yrs	(Brother) 18 yrs 4 com	(Brother) 10 yrs 1 com (Acromegaly)	(Brother) 24 yrs 6 com

Character Record

General Information

Player: David Posner

Character: Tahg Of Durg Other Names: "Troll" "The Buffalo Rider" Date:

Knows How To write "T"

Sex: M Height: 5'9" Weight: 210 Hair Color: Black Patchy Eye Color: Brown Chronological Age: 20 Physical Age: 20

Date of Birth: Winter 14, 3096 Distinguishing Marks and Features: Long hair growing from warts; Terrible, pus dripping Acne Acromegaly Lots of Hair, Caucasian Features

Race

Character's Race: Human (Westron)

~~Race-related Skills~~: Battle Cries "Boogga, boogga boogga" + "Elephant God"

~~Race-related Restrictions~~:

Notes: From Border Lands (Near Caira Hills) Son of Peasant Farmers in small village. Went out to buy an Ox for dad & got lost. Wandered Across Continent to Near Seldom & Joined "The Cursed" in Mepses Tomb

Gold: ~~14~~ gp

Attributes

Strength	18	To Hit: +1	To Damage: +3	Maximum Press: 310	Doors: 13(3)	Bend Bars/Lift Gates: 25%
Intelligence	3	Languages: 1	Magic Saving Throw: -2	Notes: STUPID
Wisdom	3	Natural or Holy Saving Throw: -3	~~Holy/Unholy Words~~
Dexterity	12	Missile Modifier:	Armor Class:	Pick	Lock	Trap	Steal	Hide:	Climb
Constitution	18	Hit Point Adjustment: +4	Poison Saving Throw:	Regeneration:	Number to Reroll:
Charisma	3	Comeliness Adjustment: -5	Frightening To Most
Comeliness	0	Description: Putrid But wears a Leather Mask	Seduction Roll: -30%	Natural Attraction Roll: -15%

Class

Character Class: Fighter

Level: 1 Description: Barbarian

Minor: Ranger (Animal Knowledge, etc)

Experience: 688 Needed: 2001 Bonus: 10%

Religion

Patron Deity: The Elephant God (Fertility + Abundance)

Holy Day:

God Roll: 11%

Alignment: Chaotic (Neutral)

Combat

Move: 4/3 Avg THAC0: 18 Average Bonus: +1 (+3 dam)

Armor Class: 5 (-2 dam) Armor: ~~Fur-Lined~~

AC: 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 0 -1 -2 -3 -4 -5 -6 -7 -8 -9 -10

To Hit: 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17/18 19 20 20 20 20 20 20 21 22 23

Non-proficiency Penalty: -2 Attacks per Round: 1/1 (1/2 Mace)

Humanoid Kills: 1

Status

Maximum Hit Points: 4, (8)

Current: -4 Bonus: +4

Conscious? 7 (-1) Dead? 0 -

Saving Throw Versus Magic: 5

Natural or Holy: 4 Poison: 4

Other Kills:

Clothes
Iron Shod Shoes (Air Tabs)
Loin Cloth
Padded Armour

Weapons 1/3 4, 7, 10

Proficiencies Maul, Scythe, L.Sword, Club

	Name	THACO	Damage	Range	Ammunition	Notes
Iron	Maul (2hd Mega hammer)	20	2d12	5'	—	1/2 AT/Rnd (5-27 dam) crit Roll on 7
	L.Sword	20	d10	-	-	crit: 5

Skills 1/1

Skill	Skill Level	Notes
Thurn (Languange)	5.0
Brawling	1.0	1 AT/d4 Kick
Gambling	1.0	Lvl d8 SC
Riding (Buffalo?)	1.0	may Ride/Fight -4/Bow -1
Animal Training	1.0	d6 weeks of time -1 day/lvl/Lvl. d4 SC
Animal Noise	1.0	LVL d6 SC
Wildlife	1.0	1/2 CH + 1/LVL on d20 (animals)/5% + 1%/LVL Herbivore
Mining	.5

el Page del Rat

♉♦ ♉●♦♋♎♦♓ ♦□♓♦♦♏■ ♌♎ ♦♒♏ ♑♑ ♑□○♌♋♦ ☼♋♦
(by the DC Combat Rat)

The Field Guide 6th Edition

What is the Field Guide, you ask yourself? Well, the Field Guide to Telrhin is a mammoth thing that includes both The Realm and Realm Law. The last full edition was the 5th Edition Field Guide, and came out in June of 1988. This past summer Chris put out a preview of the next edition, called the 6th Edition Preview. The actual 6th Edition of the Field Guide to Telrhin is coming along, slowly but surely. There are 2 updates since the 6th Edition Preview came out this past summer:

Realm Law v6.1

This version of Realm Law is the one that will be included in the final edition of the 6th Edition Field Guide, give or take a few details. Overall it reflects the changes and corrections that we came up with in Campaign Theta over the summer, and so should have no suprises in store. Campaign Phi Digamma is using a copy of it now, and so far so good. The major additions are an expanded language section and reorganization of the spellcasting classes, as well as a modified MOVE chart and Comeliness modifiers.

The Realm v6.1

Version 6.1 has no real changes from the Preview, except that it is more complete and expanded than the sketchy version of the summer. It has major work done on the deities and the religious workings, including clerical information for priests in adherence to the rule guidelines for spells and weapons outlined in Realm Law. There is some new work done in the Nations as well, particularly the overhauling and completion of Semetria. Campaign Phi Digamma has copies of this.

So no big surpises, right? Wrong. Chris says you can get these updated copies from him on a first come first serve basis. But what he does't tell you is that he's secretly working on Realm Law v6.2. Unlike all the rules before it that were based on an expanded AD&D system, this set of rules begins to drift away from that. He claims he's just testing it, but who can trust that bastard? So what's in it:

- ➔0 Level Characters
- ➔Buying Skills with XP
- ➔Alternative Armor (Piece by Piece from Warhammer FRP)
- ➔Different XP System
- ➔New Racial Modifiers

So who knows what the hell he's going to do. He hinted that he's going to randomly kill off an entire campaign so he can start them all on the new system. I wouldn't put it past him. ☠

The Adventure Log Index: #01-#38

[*] cartunes & art
[>] sci-fi articles

ARTICLE			MAG
<A>
Absolutism in Practice by W.H. Lewis			37
Adventure Log by Aldridge
	"The Sons of Fantasy"
	Chapter I	"Berland"	5/18
	Chapter II	"Shem's Lair"	6/20
	Chapter III	"The Tomb of Horrors"	8/23/38
	Chapter IV	"Tsojcanth"	9/38
	Chapter V	"The Elephant Tower"	10
	Chapter VI	"Witch Stone"	11
	Chapter VII	"Halls of Peril"	12
	Chapter VIII	"The Mirror"	13
	Chapter IX	"A Journey in the Dark"	14
	Chapter X	"The Fall of Boromir"	15
	Chapter XI	"Manda"	16
	Chapter XII	"The Final Days"	17
	"The Renegades"
	Chapter I	"Arina"	18/40
	Chapter II	"The Ancient Mounds"	19
	Chapter III	"Fort Maine"	20
	Chapter IV	"Arwen"	21
	Chapter V	"Wanderings"	22
	Chapter VI	"Destination Banderborough"	23
	Chapter VII	"Tharbad"	24
	Chapter VIII	"The Dragondome"	25
	Chapter IX	"Happenings"	25
	Chapter X	"The Storm"	26
	Chapter XI	"The Isle of Kalason"	27
	Chapter XII	"The Storming of Fernok"	29
	Chapter XIII	"The Darkening"	30/38
	Chapter XIV	"The Rescue"	31
	Chapter XV	"The Pinnacle"	32
	Chapter XVI	"Durin's Gate"	33
	Chapter XVII	"The Flight from Darkhall"	34
	Chapter XVIII	"The Hunter"	34
	Chapter XIX	"Ildengrad"	35
	Chapter XX	"The Scarlet War"	36
	Chapter XXI	"The Ambush"	37
	Chapter XXII	"Swords over Eastholm"	38
A Brief Overview of Telrhin by Aldridge			12
*The Adventures of Aquilius by Grut			10/20/23
*The Adventures of Mongo by MacGregor			27/29-30
The Adventures of the Samurai Rat by Toy			31
Agen by Aldridge			24
Alignments by Lees			11
Alignment Theory by DesJardins			25
Armor, Piece by Piece by Bandy			29
Armour by Balent & Aldridge			9
<B>
*Battle to Death by MacGregor			21
Battle Cards by Grut			23/27/30/34
Be a two-fisted Fighter by Moore			9
>Being a two-fisted Fighter in the Frontier Aldridge & Small			10
*Behind the Scenes by MacGregor & Grut			19/24
Beware the New Golems by Martin			30
*Blopers, Bleeps & Blunders by MacGregor			22
Blunderbi and Firesticks by Aldridge			37
*Bobo the Brown by Oram			25
<C>
*California Rockers by MacGregor			27
Cantrips for Clerics by Collins			25
The Chivalrous Cavalier by Gygax			8
>Cryptic Alliance of the Bi-Month by Ward			5
Cantrips by Gygax			15
Cantrips for Druids, Naturally by Reid			32
Campaign Information by Russin & Aldridge			6-15/21/23
Chef's Adventures by Oram
	#1: Tampon and the Moonies		38
The Combat Rat's 12 Rules of Steel by Aldridge			19

Comraderie of the Unicorn, 1-3 by Reimey, Rhoads & Aldridge 24
The Cursed by Posner
Chapter I: The Charge of Mattathias and Tahg 40
The Cypress by Aldridge 38
<D>
Demi-humans get a Lift by Gygax 12
Dispel Confusion by Polyhedron Newzine 23/30
Dominion by Pickens 25
The Dualist by Collins 26
<E>
Errata by Aldridge 36
<F>
Fables of Bardor; The Wrath of Rah by Abdul 36
Fables of Gronkin; Tar Kinathen & The Dragon by Glouster 39
Fables of Telrhin by Aldridge
Lord Karldaband & the Dragon 21
Esgalduin & Evil's Claw 22
The Nightcrawlers in Dimwell 23
Kinstl of the Shadows 24
Kinstl on Kandrag 25
The Cavalier 26
Crossed Swords and Shadows 27
Gandoridim 28/30
Fate's Cold Embrace 29
He Who Wanders... 30
The Blue Moons of Terinon 31
"In Karad Igrim..." 31
The Maker 32
"And in Darkness We Fall." 32
A Crimson Sunrise 33
Of Zalenheart and Efrengail 33
The Fall of a God 34
The Laurels of Lorelin 34
Of Hearts, Steel and Silver 35
The Chase for Luthia 35
The Blood of a King 36
The Skeleton Closet 37
The Eye of Set 37
Dark Aspirations 38
Fire in the Forger's Halls 39
The Hero's Tale 39
Rain over Cran Moor 40
*The Far Side by Larson (Toy) 22/28/30
Featured Dieties by Aldridge
Septar 13
Vathe 32
Kronella 33
Alumna 38
The Final Word on Missile Weapons by Aldridge 12
Five new NPC's by Polyhedron Newzine 11
A Field Guide to the World of Telrhin by Aldridge 16
The Flaming Blades by MacGregor 24
<G>
Game Review: CHILL by Epperson 7
Game Review: INDIANA JONES by Kilpin 5
The Gargoyles of Hillsbury by Aldridge 31-32
*Gobbledigook by Bil 30-31
>Going for a Swim? by Tracy 27
<H>
Higher Aspirations by Palmer 33
House Rules by Aldridge 11
The Herbsman's Scriptures by Oram 19
*How Ynnad Came to be by MacGregor 24
<I>
New Illusionist Spells by Pickens 23
*Instant Death Traps by MacGregor 27
Is There a Doctor in the Forest by Warren 32
<J>
Jason's Board by Toy 24-26/30/33
Jewels are a Gnome's Best Friend by Reimy 26
<K>
The King by Aldridge 28
*The Knights of the Rectangular Table by MacGregor 22
<L>
The Lapidary by Toy 35
>The Laser Pod by Pickens 5

*Lieutenant Bagsnot by Aldridge 22-24
The Looking Glass by Aldridge 32
Lost Ships, Madmen and Pirate Gold by O'Malley 5
<M>
Magic Use Made Easy by Grut 12
Magic User Spells by Pickens 23
*Fort Maine by MacGregor 23
*Sir Marcello by MacGregor 22/24/29
Marshalling the Martial Arts by Goldsmith/Salas 34
The Men of Telrhin by Aldridge 24
The Metamorphosis by Toy 32
>Mighty Mega-Corporations by Eastland 6
Miniature Combat by Aldridge 12
Missile Weapons in Telrhin by Aldridge 11
The Moons of Telrhin Parts I & II by Aldridge & Rhoads 9/10
The Mystic PC Class by Aldridge 18
*The Misadventures of the Combat Rat Aldridge 19-25/27/31-32/36
<N>
Nic's Bull Board by Grut 11/12/14
The Natural Order by Collins 34
>New Skills for the Star Frontiers Game by Mentzer 12
New Prices and Weird Fangled Dices by Aldridge 13
>New PC Races for the Frontier 24
Notes from the Dungeon Master 38
<O>
Observations from a Veteran Gamer by Scott 11
Official Changes for Rangers by Gygax 11
The Old World by Warhammer Fantasy 34
Orcish [Rat Page] by the Combat Rat 22
<P>
Paintball Update by Aldridge 39/40
Periodic Index #11-#15 by Aldridge 15
Periodic Index #01-#20 by Aldridge 20
Periodic Index #01-#25 by Aldridge 25
Periodic Index #01-#30 by Aldridge 31
Periodic Index #01-#35 by Aldridge 35
Periodic Index #01-#38 by Aldridge 38
Periodic Index #01-#40 by Aldridge 40
The Prophecy by Weiss 38
>The Proton Beam by Eastland 7
<R>
Ratboard by the Rat 38
The Rat Page by the Combat Rat 12-19/21-24/27/30/32/36-38/40
The Rat Page: The Medievil Wars by the Combat Rat 17-19/23
The Rat Page: Orcish by the Combat Rat 22
The Rat Page: Spells by the Combat Rat 37
Review Page by the Rat and Toy 24/25/31
Role Playing by Aldridge 14
<S>
Sage Advice by Dragon Magazine 13/29
Savage Sword of Lugnut by Moore 29
Scrolls of Skelos by Aldridge and DC Rat 20/24/28-29/35/40
Short Hops and Big Drops by Inniss 11
*Sir Aquilius by MacGregor 28
*Sir Gorin by MacGregor 27
*The Saga of Aquilius Lief by Grut 14/23
The Sons of Fantasy: Their Saga by Aldridge 15/36
*The Story by Grut 23-24
The Story of the Magical Mountain by Lee 37
*A Stroll through Ugar by Grut & Aldridge 19
The Theta Summary by Aldridge 38/39/40
*Suwane, I,II&III by Grut 21/23
<T>
Tahg of Durg's Character Sheet 40
Tales of Shansar by Aldridge
Prologue "Tale of Time" 35
Chapter I "Lineage of Adrahan" 35
Chapter II "Lindy" 36
Tiamat, the Ecology of by Selinker 29
Tournament Scoring System by Polyhedron Newzine 11
*Todd's Korner by MacGregor 19/21/23-26/28
*Todd's Toon by MacGregor 24/27
Tools of the (Thieving) Trade by Garcia 30
The 'DC Tournament: 1985' by the Combat Rat 13
*The Trilogy by Grut 37/40

<W>
Waterbourne Adventures by Cook 24
Who Says the Log Isn't Sexy? by the Combat Rat 22
Why Gargoyles Don't Have Wings, but Should... by Gygax 11
The Wanderer: Chapters I-IV by Aldridge 19/31-32/35
<Y>
>Yachts and Privateers Return by Niles 23
Your Profession in Telrhin by Aldridge 12

CHARACTER PICTURE

RANNOR DOTAOA
aka CLAUDIUS MANDRAKE

Four Nerds Publishing